WELCOME

Football South Australia CEO, Michael Carter

On behalf of Football South Australia, I would like to welcome all clubs, officials, players and spectators to ServiceFM Stadium and the 2022 Women's & Girls Cup Final Day.

The success of our sport and the opportunities that it provides would not be possible without the contribution of our corporate partners, our clubs and associations, our match officials, our board and committees, and the dedicated volunteers who support the game in South Australia.

This year's Women's & Girls Cup Final Day will see exciting matchups across the Junior, Community and Senior Women's levels, including the Women's National Premier League & State League Cup Final matchup between West Adelaide and Adelaide City.

Adelaide City looks to secure their first Cup victory since their 2020 heroics, while West Adelaide searches for their first cup success since the 2014 season. Having already secured the Premiership with two games remaining, West Adelaide would like to secure their second trophy in consecutive weeks. Pembroke Old Scholars and Modbury Vista - Division 1 are set to face off in the Women's Division 1/2/3 Cup Final, while Northern Wolves - Division 4 face BOSA - Division 4 in the Women's Division 4/5 Cup Final.

We are also treated to a fantastic day of Junior Girls Cup Finals, which sees three exciting matchups to start the day. Adelaide Hills are set to face Adelaide University in the Under 17 Girls Cup Final, South Adelaide Red will play Modbury Vista Red in the Under 15 Girls Cup Final, while Adelaide Jaguars Red face Adelaide University Red in the Under 13 Girls Cup Final.

On behalf of the Football SA Board, Management and Staff, I hope you enjoy what is sure to be a great day of Cup final football.

WEST ADELAIDE PREVIEW

Preview by Antonis Pagonis | THE INNER SANCTUM

West Adelaide Women SC had a strong 2021 season but embodied the old phrase – “almost there but not quite”. Second best was an apt description and it showed come the season’s end, frustratingly for Hellas, disappointment always seemed to come against familiar opposition.

Come Round 16 of the 2021 installation of the WNPL and WSL Cup, West Adelaide was drawn against Salisbury Inter, a tough matchup that saw them crash out of the competition much earlier than what it was accustomed to.

“It was very annoying exiting so early, we are used to making it to the last few rounds, it was different drawing them so early. We had problems trying to beat Inter last year, it was something that we couldn’t quite do, so drawing them in the Cup was pretty hard and exiting the cup early was also tough because it was something we weren’t used to,” Emily Hodgson told The Inner Sanctum.

Hodgson went on to state that Inter was her side’s greatest rival in season 2021 and it showed on the table with Inter and West Adelaide finishing first and second respectively.

Frustratingly for Hellas, in the three meetings they had against Inter during the regular season, they could not muster a win, with two disappointing losses and a draw the difference between the two sides.

Come Grand Final day, few were surprised when the competition’s two best sides made it to the last game of the season. Despite Hellas looking like breaking their Salisbury duck, and even taking the lead twice on the day, they succumbed to a fourth competitive loss to the same opposition in a calendar year.

“It was super disappointing for us because we did take the lead twice in the game but we just couldn’t hold on in the end. It was disappointing because for the first time that season we were in front, we had it in our hands but we just got beat in the last few minutes,” Hodgson said.

Nicole Blackett, West Adelaide

West Adelaide entered season 2022 with a point to prove. Hellas secured the Premiership after sitting on top of the ladder for the majority of the season. With a goal difference in the 50s and only a single defeat, West Adelaide coach Tracey Jenkins has her team firing on all cylinders and Hodgson has felt the team taking its commitment and performance to the next level.

"It has been amazing playing for this side this year. I think we've gelled together really well, it was something that we missed a little bit last year. The girls are amazing, everyone is so nice and encouraging," she said.

"It's been great that we've been able to score lots of goals which was also something we were lacking last year. I think everyone has unfinished business from last year, I think that's motivated us a lot more."

The positivity was momentarily translated into a flashback of horror when Football South Australia conducted the draw for the quarter-finals of the WNPL and WSL Cup in season 2022. West Adelaide had once again drawn bogey side Salisbury Inter early.

"I think we were all a bit shocked and surprised that we drew them again so early in the Cup. It felt a bit like 'oh no, is it going to happen again?'," Hodgson said.

It was not Hellas' most prolific performance of the season, but importantly it managed to squeeze past a side that caused it lots of heartache in 2021, even if it was only by a solitary goal to nil.

"It was a huge positive and a very big relief that they were knocked out of the cup because they have been one of our bigger rivals this year as well. Beating them was a big positive."

A new year presents new challenges and despite currently flying high on the summit of WNPL SA, season 2022 did not get off to a flying start for Hellas who lost to rivals Adelaide City in an eight-goal thriller in the opening game. West Adelaide has not lost since that day and Hodgson believes the opening day reality check has helped spark her side.

"We didn't want it enough. Second to the ball, not playing well as a team, it was Round one so it was kind of understandable but since that game, the girls have been more hungry and we have just wanted to win. We don't want that to happen again as it was a big loss as well," she said.

The two old rivals face each other in the WNPL and WSL Cup Final and unlike last year's string of disappointments at the hands of Salisbury Inter, West Adelaide has managed to level the score with Angelo Paul's Adelaide City.

In their second encounter of the season, Hellas overcame a slow start, that saw them a goal down to win the match in injury time thanks to a Nicole Blackett free kick.

“Nicole Blackett’s free kick was amazing. It was such a relief when it went in because we had been trying all game to get that second goal that we needed to win. She has hit a few free kicks like that before so you kind of expect them to go in,” Hodgson said.

The win against City may have been worth three points on paper, but for Hodgson and her teammates, it was more valuable than that. Beating City means that Hellas will be entering its Cup Final with the belief it can get the job done.

“It was good to get one up over City, so now we are even. I think the girls fought until the very end which led to [the] win. We just believe in ourselves, we believe that we can beat City which really helps with everyone’s confidence,” she said.

West Adelaide has overcome the ghosts of the past and this year’s challengers. The next goal for Hellas is to consistently convert this resilience and ability into silverware on the big stage with the first test coming against an Adelaide City side that will also be backing themselves in what is promising to be an enthralling final.

ADELAIDE CITY PREVIEW

Preview by Antonis Pagonis | Front Page Football

The receiver usually easily decides when Adelaide City calls with an offer. Few had a better platform to confirm that than Angelo Paul. The young coach was offered the Adelaide City Women's top job for the 2022 season.

Paul had no substantial experience in the women's game. Instead, he spent time as an assistant coach in Adelaide United's NPL setup and then at Adelaide City under Michael Matricciani and Paul Pezos. But he jumped at the chance to coach the Adelaide City Women's side.

"For me, it was an absolute no-brainer. Firstly because of the stature of the club; for me, it was quite a privilege to coach [the] first team at Adelaide City, so that was a proud moment," Paul told Front Page Football.

If Paul needed any more convincing that the City Women job was the right move, he only had to look to the senior coach he was assisting on the Men's side. Paul Pezos earned his stripes in South Australian football management in the Women's game. He won the WNPL and the Cup in 2017 with Adelaide City before transitioning to the Adelaide United NPL setup. When discussing it with Paul, the 43-year-old was full of praise for the City Women's job.

"As soon as I got offered the role, the first person I spoke to was Pez (Paul Pezos). He said, 'mate, it is an excellent job to take,' he recommended that I take it and said that I would learn so much and that it was a great step for me. He was right because, in the women's game, you are managing a senior team and everything that comes with that," Paul said.

Angelo Paul and Pezos have a history together, with the latter mentoring the young coach in his formative years in management.

"I was just a sponge for the four to five years that I was working with him. It's been massively beneficial for me to learn and take away his principles and [how] he goes about things," Paul added.

"I was very lucky in a sense to work with him at quite a young age and observe how he set the guideline of how his team wants to play football, the culture that is needed, what is needed from every single player, and what's needed from him to deliver whatever the task was. Whether it was developing players at Adelaide United or winning championships at Adelaide City."

With Pezos always open to discussing the art of coaching with Paul, either formally or personally, remaining close to his mentor was a perk of taking the job.

"The good thing is that with him coaching the Adelaide City Men, he is accessible still. So any issues, any problems I have, I can go through him and get his advice on everything," Paul said.

The standout for Paul in his early days as head coach of the Adelaide City Women? The culture of the team he inherited was spearheaded by the club's successful senior players, that boast impressive resumes.

"They are a professional group and hard workers, which sets the tone for the younger girls. Most of my recruits in the off-season were younger players, so right from the onset, it was a very good start. It made the environment better for the young players to develop because that culture is already set," Paul said.

"The senior girls have won quite a bit in the past, but you can see they are still hungry and driven for success. It made life a lot easier, and I [could] implement what I wanted to do quite quickly, which was good."

Paul has masterminded City's return to a final after it fell short in two crushing four-goal margin defeats in the previous year. But he acknowledged the work former coach Jamie Dunning put in to develop the squad during a time of transition in 2021, something that is beginning to bear fruits today.

"I am ecstatic that we could make a final, but it's off some good work in the past couple of years. Jamie had to work with [many] young players and did a good job developing them. But he was only able to get a handful of games from those senior girls, so there was a lot of chopping and changing of the squad each week. He set a good foundation for them to move on and try and build off that," Paul said.

Daniela Di Bartolo, Adelaide City

City may have reached the final, but the task is anything but simple. Angelo Paul's side is coming up against a West Adelaide juggernaut that eliminated City in the 2021 WNPL semi-finals. West Adelaide has dominated the 2022 season, sitting on top of the WNPL ladder with a goal difference in the 50s.

Despite its dominance, Tracey Jenkins' West Adelaide is mortal after all. Its only loss intriguingly came at the hands of Paul's Adelaide City in the first game of the season in an eight-goal thriller. It's an omen that may help City's morale heading into the final.

Their second encounter this season saw Adelaide City take the lead once again. But after grabbing an equaliser, West Adelaide evened the wins ledger via a stunning Nicole Blackett free kick at the death.

"I think we take a lot of confidence because we know we can beat them. In the second game we played, we lost the game 2-1, but we played quite well, and if you watch the game back, we were missing a lot of players," Paul said.

"Even in that game, we scored early, [and] had a few very good chances to make [it] 2-0, but we didn't capitalise on that. Then they scored a goal, but we managed them quite well. They got the win in the end; they deserved the win. But I think they know that when they play us, it is not going to be an easy game, and we will take a lot of confidence knowing that we have beaten them going into the final."

Like last year, Adelaide City has been missing its star power throughout the season. But it has managed to compete strongly in the league. While Paul hopes most of his players will be available for the final, he will be without some considerable star power.

"Matilda (McNamara) has moved overseas; that's super exciting for her; I hope she does well. Isabel Hodgson won't be available for the final. But we will have the majority of our players back by then," he said.

Regardless of who takes the field on the day, Paul's expectations and philosophy remain the same, the young coach adamant that is the path to success.

"There is a culture of winning already; the girls that come into the club have to buy into that. They know we have to be quite ruthless in our pursuit of excellence," Paul stated.

"I think that (mentality) is quite beneficial. It may add some pressure, but I am trusting the process I have implemented from preseason, trusting myself, and believing in my plans. I believe success will come [if] you stick to your principles; that's how I've approached it."

Experienced players like Daniela Di Bartolo, Dylan Holmes, Alyce Macauley, Valeria Guajardo, and Ali Atkins will hopefully be available for City's big day. Its young core, spearheaded by Katie Bowler, will be well supported in its bid to bring the club back to the heights it is accustomed to reaching. A trophy can help the winning culture instilled by the coach and his senior players be effectively sold onto another generation of young players in black and white.
